Permanent Organization Will Be Outgrowth of First Joint Dinner Of City Business Men and Farmers

How Grove City community has become the greatest purebred cattle center in the United States for the acreage involved how through cooperation with the business men and the farmers bank deposits have almost trebled in three years how the community spirit has been developed until Grove City is actually a community 10 miles in diameter in spite of ending at the corporate limits how progression that the town and the city men are linked together with much in common has united in cementing ties of relationship that will probably endure for all time were graphically painted by those who have been long in sympathy with the development of the fair city and district—Dr J J Pilkington president of the Grove City National Bank business of the city and treasurer of the Bessemer Gas Light Company principal speaker at the dinner under the auspices of the farm bureau of northern Fayette county and business men of Connellsville Thursday evening at the Kiwanis Club rooms at the Carnegie Free Library the first formal gathering of its kind in the history of the Lutheran end of the county

As a result of the dinner which was attended by more than 150 farmers and business men steps were taken to put the Connellsville community on the road to the success that Grove City has won and a movement for Northern Fayette county is conceded to have greater possibilities in the line of developing and diversifying its agricultural resources

Characterizing agriculture as the greatest undeveloped resource this Nation and one having possibilities for Connellsville that must be estimated Dr Pilkington urged farmers to follow the example of Grove City with confidence that there can be no doubt as to the result if the same plan is followed co-operatively and with the purpose of mutual interest

Stock raising and diversified farming must be encouraged to both the farmer and the city Dr Pilkington said because it is conducive to good business and builds up the soil Poultry raising might be placed in the same close he added

So deeply did the advice sink that at the close of the meeting's program a motion was offered by a farmer William Dixon of Lower Tyrone township that the good work by had be carried on motion be continued with the suggestion that the committee in charge arrange for further meetings that the Cochran Hill Rotary Club be invited to attend in accepting the motion Dr Cochran said that in his gathering he had ever attended had he been so impressed as at this and with the possibilities that may accrue the motion was adopted with acclamation that was long and loud

Late Hugh Fielding of the Connellsville Chamber of Commerce referred to those present as neighbors and friends using the words he said with full knowledge of their meaning and appropriateness Your presence indicates neighborliness he continued We want to translate that neighborliness into friendship The next primary object of this gathering is to cement the friendship that exists or should exist between the people of the county and the people of the town Eugene I Norton was introduced by Mr Chairman Norton master The chairman at Mr Norton said in full of promise for the ambitious plans of the committee Increased cultivation of the community spirit cultivation of closer and friendlier relations between the farmer and the city the recommended cooperation towards greater production for home consumption and an opportunity for surplus at a fair price

Acquaintanceship Mr Norton said leads to fellowship fellowship begets confidence confidence leads to higher and nobler service There can be nothing better he continued than organization of the farmers and business men through their cooperation abandon farms about Connellsville can be put back on the map we are told made to produce And if these things are accomplished we will have done a wonderful thing for the community

D F Snyder who owns farms near Meyersdale was on the program for a response in behalf of the farmers Mr Snyder said he wanted to impress the fact that one present felt in debted the help of the other and that all deserved the help of the other Each financial way can by the farmer in need it was The committee in charge he said has dreamed many things for the improvement of the community adding that if you think to us we will show you some things worth while Pride in our city and pride in our country with community spirit concerning the town is what we would like to see exist It may be hitching on a wagon to a star it concluded but build high with proper ideal

It was Mr Snyder's first attempt to make a speech in public All agree that he got away with it

Some 50 farmers attended the dinner They were deeply interested in four while the majority of the business men left soon after the speaking ended Time was lacking in discussing what had been put forward by the speakers and given expression to their pleasure in having been present It was 10 o'clock before the last of them started for home

Dr Pilkington was the principal speaker of the occasion While some knew of what Grove City has accomplished and while Dr Pilkington pronounced the most talked of center of community spirit in the country to many what they heard was a revelation and a pleasure

We called west reads December Day said Dr Pilkington in opening We dropped with flags and rested with flowers the graves of those who sleep on Decoration Day

WHEN CO-OPERATION WILL BECOME IDEAL

What will be an ideal co-operation between the people of the town and those of the county was clearly expressed by Dr Snyder the representative of the farmers at last night's joint dinner when he said

I would like to see the time arrive when the people of the county can come to town with their families and say with pride This is our town and when the town people can drive into the country with their families and just as proudly say there is our country

That would be like living our motto I said Chairman Jordan Gans referred to those present as neighbors and friends using the words he said with full knowledge of their meaning and appropriateness Your presence indicates neighborliness and the intimacy We want to translate that neighborliness into friendship The next primary object of this gathering is to cement the friendship that exists or should exist between the people of the county and the people of the town Eugene I Norton was introduced by Mr Chairman Norton master The chairman at Mr Norton said in full of promise for the ambitious plans of the committee Increased cultivation of the community spirit cultivation of closer and friendlier relations between the farmer and the city the recommended cooperation towards greater production for home consumption and an opportunity for surplus at a fair price

FRIDAY EVENING, JUNE 1, 1923

THE MOST SIGNIFICANT EVENT IN OUR HISTORY.

A splendid start has been made in the movement to effect co-operation and mutual confidence between the people of the farms in Northern Fayette county and the business men of Connellsville

The joint dinner held in the Kiwanis Club rooms Carnegie Free Library last evening, was one of unusual interest in all the essential objects and purposes which were to test out the sentiment and attitude of both the farmers and the business men toward the co-operative position. The success came not because of the attention given to the details which are necessary to the work out in connection with such affair but because of the fine spirit which both the farmers and the business men manifested during the evening. They were with each other.

Never before in the history of the town has there been such a gathering of the two groups of the most vital interests in our community life and not since the inspiring days of the Liberty Loan and Red Cross drives during war time has there been such a demonstration of neighborliness good fellowship and a desire to be mutually helpful to each other.

By their presence interest in the exercises of the evening and the good will toward each other both the farmers and the business men gave striking proof of their grasp of the situation existing in our community and of their willingness to join hands in meeting it in such a way that neither will profit at the expense of the other but that both will benefit through closer co-operation and better understanding.

The remarks of Secretary J. P. Norton Jessup, Snyder the farmer representative and Dr. Fiftin the principal speaker of the evening brought into clear outline the fact that in the development and diversification of farming, the people of Connellsville and the nearby farming section have right at hand a source of practically unlimited possibilities. The largest and best development cannot be made unless as Dr. Fiftin well observed there is complete co-operation between the business men and the farmers. Every citizen must realize the only by rendering the best of service can a community be made to prosper.

The letters other meetings have convinced us that the farmers and business men alike want to render such service and are ever ready for an opportunity to find practical expression to their desire to have a part in fostering and making more prominent the prosperity of our community.

In this and other respects the affair was quite the most significant and important this section has ever witnessed. Large credit must be accorded all the organizations who by their interest and sympathetic interest in the project contributed so fully to its success. To those it owes the most sincere and cordial congratulations. The whole community is ready for some definite steps in what it is hoped promises to be live and effective plan of co-operation which embers about 40 contributory to Connellsville

"HIGHEST TRAINING IN PATRIOTISM"

During his speech Lieutenant Hill Grove Commissary on March 1 Day Tom D. W. H. Hendrick gave utterance to some vital truths relative to the true spirit of memorial day. It should be read and heeded by every citizen that they will ever more completely realize that they will ever inspire us to make More Real Patriotism. In part he said: "Dr. Hendrick said

We have you see that in the true spirit of patriotism and simple worship we meet today to dedicate our friends both the service of the citizenship of our country and especially the risen generation our tribute this year to the Supreme

Our lives make these graves the most sacred of all the years as all in the nation across this vacation the best to train in patriotism. Indeed it is hard to conceive of a better or more effective exercise to stimulate the fostering of patriotic sentiment than except for the fact on the shelf of part

We have read volumes of patriotic literature or listen breathlessly to the most inspiring addresses, we may study out country's history until we know it by heart we may engage in the singing of national anthems and songs we may touchingly salute the flag each time it passes by. All this is good and as it should be but it is nevertheless only the theory of patriotism. It is the proxy of national feeling and sentiment. There is something more needed to make a nation great and to instill love of country into the hearts of the people—more than the occasional shouting or outbursts of patriotic applause. We need that patriotism that is born of devotion and consecration that patriotism that springs from the inspiration of the highest form of self sacrifice and noble achievement.

Those who sleep here of the nations defenders who sacrificed life or were equally willing gladly to sacrifice it have exhibited the truest form of patriotism. So that not to serve on the field of battle is that form of devotion in which we are now engaged affectionately preserving the memory of these dead by keeping fresh and green and fragrant their graves.

"What particular form of patriotic expressions or love and service of country do we desire the citizens of this great republic to possess? When our shores are filling every year with new-coming immigrants uniformed in the spirit and principle of our people incapable of cherishing and venerating as we do the heritage of our past what the coming generations are rising for our wake and following hard after is should we not seek by every means to have them love and serve their country and die? Those whose memories and deeds we honor and cherish today. What better object lesson can possible be exhibited in times of peace than this? Only such devotion as ours now can expose and retain that highest form of patriotism upon which our nation can hope to endure. Once the memory of patriotic forms longer will there be no longer any source of inspiration for higher achievement."

Keep Registration Law

Senator Mansfield

Senator Mansfield of Allegheny county is moving that the Schaffer bill on the personal registration of voters law as it affects third class cities still it would be a step backward to enact this legislation. He is in accord with Senator Mansfield. Not only would we retain the registration law in third class cities but we would extend it to all boroughs and all municipalities.

Heavy registration in last year's elections. Added to the fact is not so frequent as in the past the persistent report that the bills is still being considered. In view of letting the law remain as it is with changes in the law to make it easier to prove the present system and put the election stock out of business.

Highway Improvement

FIREMEN IN RURAL DISTRICT

Construction of Hard-Surfaced Roads Enables Fire Department to Protect Farmers.

Dallas county, Texas, has made it possible for the rural districts to obtain protection from the fire department in Dallas through the construction of modern hard-surfaced highways. A contract executed recently between the Dallas City commission and the county commissioners provides for fire protection to farmers on all paved roads within a radius of 15 miles of Dallas. When a farmhouse or barn along a paved road catches fire all the farmer has to do is to telephone the Dallas department and it will respond at forty to fifty miles an hour with a chemical engine or a steamer as occasion may warrant.

Dallas county is one of the first in the country to make such an arrangement. Several fires have already been extinguished with small loss. A general reduction in fire insurance rates in the smaller towns and farming districts has been the result. The service will be made more extensive when the big road building program now under way in Dallas county is finished. Farmers affected by the arrangement are reported to be delighted with the protection afforded.

CRITICISM MOST NECESSARY

However, It Should Be Intelligent and Constructive, Not Destructive and Detrimental

Roads are seen the most used the most, and needed the most of any public utility. It is natural that they should be talked about because they are continually in evidence. Every now and then we hear criticism of the road building program. Now criticism is one of the most necessary requisites of success providing it is intelligent and constructive, but criticism that has no basis in fact is to say the least destructive and detrimental. While a well aimed shot may bring down the proper objective a stone thrown at random will do much damage and no good. If you want your criticism to do good be sure you know the facts. Think before you speak.—Department Public Works Nebraska.

KEEP ROADS FROM CRACKING

Heavy Sheets of Steel Fabric Are Now Imbedded in Most Improved Types of Concrete.

Flat sheets of heavy steel fabric are now imbedded in the most improved types of concrete roads to increase their life. The state highway departments of both New York and Pennsylvania have been so thoroughly convinced of the value of the innovation that hereafter the steel reinforcements will be specified in all contracts let by them, says Popular Mechanics Magazine in an illustrated article. Of even greater significance is the use of a contraction joint in the center of the road.

HARD ROADS BENEFIT HEALTH

Among Other Things It Is Possible Now for City People to Enjoy Outdoor Life.

The extension of hard roads has not only benefited the rural district and its people it has brought health and all its blessings, within easier reach of the people of the crowded city. It has taken the country the great outdoors, with its rush of pure fresh air and sunshine and health to the very edge of the city. The motor and the road take the mother and the baby away from the smoke, the grime, the dust and the disease of the heat baked community out to the park, the field and health.

To Open Last Link.

The last link in the 3,500-mile scenic motor highway through western Canada and the United States is to be thrown open to traffic June 30. The road, 98 miles long, passes through the Rockies and virgin mountain and forest country.

Tax to Build Highways.

The proposal to place a tax on every gallon of gasoline consumed by motorists for the purpose of raising funds to build new highways is gaining ground throughout the country.

NOT ENTIRELY ARTIFICIAL

"I was deceived to you complained the husband. "Your teeth are hand made your complexion is artificial and your hair is another's. You are wholly false."

"No, not wholly," she replied. "I have a mind of my own, as you very well know."

And he was forced to admit the bitter truth of her statement.—Boston Transcript.

Belgian a Agricultural Laborers.

One of the surprising features of travel through Belgium is the multitude of small farms and also the intensive cultivation. Before the war out of less than 7,780,000 acres of total area about 5,000,000 acres were tilled. Much of the ground is worked with the hoe and the spade and not less than one-fifth of the people are classed as agricultural laborers.

There is hardly a neighborhood in the United States where women cannot be found who have derived benefit from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For nearly fifty years this botanic medicine has been overcoming some of the worst forms of female ills. No Particular Change In Market for Spot Furnace Coke During Past Week

Showing Is Stronger Than Expected in the Absence of Demand.

OFFERINGS ARE LIMITED

Would Soon Be Absorbed by Actual Buying; Foundry Less Active; Third Quarter Contracting Drags, Consumers Showing Little Interest.

Special to The Weekly Courier.

PITTSBURG, May 29.—The spot coke market has undergone no particular change this week, furnace coke being quotable at $5.00 to $5.25 and foundry at $6.00 to $6.50. Now and then a little furnace coke has gone at less than $5.00, but this was distress coke and the transactions were of no consequence as to setting the general market level.

The spot market does not seem at all strong from the viewpoint that the contracts now running make an average of above $7.00, but on the other hand coke does well to show any spot market at all when there is practically no demand. Consumers are well supplied by their contracts and have no occasion to buy spot lots.

The amount of coke available in the spot market is very limited. On any day actual purchases would soon absorb all the offerings at $5.00 and leave the market at $5.25. A little more buying would take all the $5.25 coke, and so on.

The foundry coke market is reported as being less active than a month ago, but perhaps it merely appears less active by reason of offerings being heavier so that consumers can get what they need without inquiring as extendedly as formerly. In some quarters there has been a notion that the consumption of foundry coke has been decreasing, but this does not seem to be the case. The more cautious reports that foundries in general are running as heavily as they were one month or two months ago. The blast furnaces report that the foundries are taking pig iron deliveries as well as formerly, and the presumption is that they are melting the iron they are taking.

The contracting movement in third quarter furnace coke is decreasing, the course of affairs being quite different from that of three months ago when second quarter coke was being picked up with avidity, the buying demand being such as to send prices upwards, the latest buyers paying the highest prices.

On what may be called the present buying movement the first transaction occurred fully three weeks ago the price being $6.00. Some additional buying occurred, but even at this date the major portion of the third quarter business has not been done. A week ago it appeared that the $6.00 price was established as the third quarter contract price level, but now the price does not seem to be so well established. In the past few days there have been definite rumors in circulation of $6.00 being shaded, although by no large amount, no more than the outside than 25 cents a ton.

While the operators have been talking third quarter prices with avidity for several weeks, the average consumer is exhibiting little interest. There are several inquiries out, but the prospective buyers are not pushing them, and some consumers have not inquired at all. The latter say here is still plenty of time to act, before the third quarter begins.

The possibility now appears that in some cases third quarter contracts will not be made, the coke being bought for short periods instead. Sometimes in the past buyers and sellers have been unable to agree on price, and the solution of the difficulty was not close for the quarter but to run along with spot, prompt, weekly or monthly purchases. There is no change from last week in quotable prices, as follows:

Spot furnace	$5.00 to $5.25
Contract furnace	$6.00
Spot foundry	$6.00 to $6.50

The coal market in general has continued to show the betterment that appeared over a week ago. The Pittsburg district is actually getting about $2.15 for spot steam nine runs, while the Bessemer district is getting $2.25 to $2.35. Lake coal, which is usually 3-4 inch nmp to bring the $2.40 to $2.60. There is close competition between districts for the lake trade.

The pig iron market has eased off 50 cents on Bessemer and basic, from the quotations of a week ago, with foundry iron nominally unchanged. In Bessemer the decline occurred on a few small sales, while in basic there was 15,000-ton lot to make the new quotation of $27.50, Valley. This basis has shown some signs of becoming equalized, by consumers taking an interest. In foundry iron the going market is practically only a carload market. Sellers admit that a good sized tonnage would go at some lower price, but as good sized tonnages are not inquired for the market quotation is the price at which the current transactions occur. As consumption of foundry iron seems to keep up Crescent Supply Co.

Union Official Admits There Are Too Many Miners

In a recent address before the Yonkers, N. Y., Board of Trade, John Moore of Columbus, O., an official of the United Mine Workers, declared there are 1,000 too many miners and 200,000 too many miners in America, for which condition he said the operators are responsible.

This excessive number of mines and miners add to the cost of production of coal, he said, because the overhead costs of maintaining the idle mines must be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of the total amount of coal produced and a living wage be provided for the 200,000 surplus miners as long as they are kept in the industry. If these mines and miners were eliminated, Moore said, it would mean lower cost of production per ton and lower coal prices to the consumer.

Discrimination Was Not Unduly Prejudicial

In deciding the complaint of the Northern West Virginia Coal Operators' Association against the Pittsburg & Lake Erie Railroad Company, 68 I. C. C. 167, the Interstate Commerce Commission has held that practices of the Pennsylvania and the Pittsburg & Lake Erie railroads during period of labor troubles and abnormal conditions following federal control, in the distribution of coal cars to mines on the Monongahela and Morgantown & Wheeling railways found not to have been unreasonable under the circumstances and conditions existing, and while discrimination did exist it was not such as to constitute undue prejudice in favor of mines on the Pennsylvania and Pittsburg & Lake Erie.

JAZZ CONVERTS HEATHEN

Sacred Words Set to Popular Music Have Strong Appeal.

Ragtime and "jazz" may be a curse to the detriment of young America, but their syncopated strains are proving a means to Christian ideals in Tibet, Tibet and Tahiti, according to Rev. Paul Rader of Chicago, evangelist and president of the Christ and Missionary alliance.

"American jazz music is used by our more than 100 missionaries to get and the attention of and assemble the native people in our fields to evangelistic services," Mr. Rader said. "Our missionaries carry no arms, but through musical instruments and their voices raised in song full power in their work of converting the heathen. Sacred words are put to modern jazz songs, noble thoughts to popular tunes, and then sung with a spirit that attracts the black, yellow and brown races.

"All sorts of hymns are sung, but we find that the rhythm of ragtime tunes delights the simple mind of the savage, and appeals to his tom-tom trained mind, and the first thing the missionary knows the wild man is singing Christian words, learning white religious theology and presently is converted."

TUBE TREASURER BECOMES BANKER

G. E. Benson Made Officer of Union Trust Company

HAS CHARGE OF CREDITS

Great Pittsburgh Institution Is Completing One of the Finest Banking Rooms in the United States.

Announcement is made by H. C. Mc Mildowney, President of the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, of the election of George E. Benson, Treasurer and for many years prominent in the affairs of the National Tube Company, as vice president of the Union Trust Company in charge of new business and credits, effective June 1. Mr. Benson is widely known not only in manufacturing but in financial circles and his entrance into the banking business will be received with interest.

GEORGE E. BENSON

Mr. Benson was born in Pittsburgh April 26, 1875, and became a resident of Middletown, Pa., in 1881. He attended the public schools there and graduated from the Middletown High School in 1894. Mr. Benson entered the pipe manufacturing business upon leaving school, starting in the office of the American Tube and Iron Company. He remained with that company until 1899 when it was merged with the National Tube Company. He then came to Pittsburgh, becoming identified with the statistical department of the National Tube Company and later with the sales and accounting departments.

Mr. Benson was for two years secretary to William B. Schiller, president of the National Tube Company, and in 1909 was made Credit Manager. In 1912 he was made treasurer of the National Tube Company, a position he has since held. The magnificent financial position of this company is in part a tribute to his ability. Mr. Benson is a member of the Pittsburgh Association of Credit Men and was the first chairman of the United States Steel Corporation Credit Men serving two years, the limit allowed any one member. His work has brought him into touch with bankers in all parts of the United States and his exceptional ability has been recognized.

In addition to being treasurer of the National Tube Company, Mr. Benson is treasurer of the Shelby Steel Tube Company, treasurer and director of the Gary Tube Company, McKeesport Connecting Railroad Company, Benwood and Wheeling Connecting Railroad Company, Lake Terminal Railroad Company, Shelby Land Company, and Connoquenessing Bridge Company.

Mr. Benson is a member of the Duquesne Club, Union Club, Pittsburgh Athletic Association, Fellows Club, Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh and the Civic Club of Allegheny County, in whose activities he has been greatly interested. In 1920 Mr. Benson felt that healthful recreation for the boys of Horchview, where he lived, was essential to their welfare and he organized the Broadway Club, an organization of 200 members of which he became president. The members have since continued him in that office. Mr. Benson is also a member of the South Hills Country Club, Stanton Heights Golf Club and the Youghiogheny Country Club of McKeesport.

The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh is one of the largest financial institutions in the world, having capital and surplus of $41,500,000. It has purchased the Union Arcade Building for $5,000,000 from the estate of H. C. Frick and it is now remodeling the Fifth Avenue half of this beautiful building to secure one of the finest and most modern banking rooms in the United States. One of the largest and strongest safe deposit vaults in the world, with capacity for 20,000 safe deposit boxes, is now being completed. The main door to this vault weighs 100,000 pounds and the vault itself is so large that all of the gold bullion in the world, amounting to eight billion dollars, could be stored in it and there would still be room for 50 per cent more. A. W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, was the first president of the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh.

Coke Production Keeps Same General Trend As During Past Five Weeks

urnace Ovens Gain Slightly, Merchants Continue to Curtail.

ECOND DROP IN TOTAL

ince the Improvement Began Early In February Brings Tonnage Down to 295,670; Four and Five-Day Running Schedules at Large Plants.

From The Weekly Courier

Such changes as took place in coke oduction during the week ended turday, May 26, were in the same neral trend of the past five weeks. e merchant operators continued the imming process, with a consequent duction in output. The furnace ants kept closely to their program, ding to their production but not in fficient volume to overcome the decline in merchant tonnage. As a reit the regional output dropped below that of the preceding week causg the second dip in the production rve since the upward movement of e present year began in the second ek of February.

The loss in merchant output was 170 tons, or 1,500 tons greater than e curtailment made by them in the ceding week. Although 62 merant ovens were returned to the tive list, the observance of a twoy layoff by some of the larger procers, and one day at other operaons, proved even more effective than e blowing out of ovens in the week May 19 in cutting down production. Almost without exception the furce plants made a full six-day run, riving all the advantages which ch a program brings to an oven ant. At the same time 36 ovens re added to those in running. The mparatively slight gain of 1,010 tons a total of 183,350 at furnace plants dicates that the ovens of this interest are operating at about 94 per nt efficiency with 67 per cent of eir equipment in use. The heavier ns of the merchants' shown an operting efficiency of only about 80 per nt with 76 per cent of their ovens ted as active. The combined proction of 295,670 tons represents an erage efficiency of close 99 per nt, but only 71 per cent of the tion's available equipment is being ed. These comparisons reflect the ects of the contrasting policies of e two producing interests, one of hich has found it necessary to apy measures of restraint, the other ing under no such compulsion.

The observance of Memorial Day is week will undoubtedly curtail proction and, from present indications, ll be the only means of that kind at will be needed to be applied to intain the present margin of safety tween the absorptive capacity of e market and over-production, very other condition essential to ady running exists at this time. ir supply remains exceptionally od. In fact, there is a surplus, the erage placements by the Pennsylnia railroad last week having been 5 per cent. The Monongahela railay average 97 per cent which was apie to take care of the production its lines.

Coal car supply has taken on a very ided improvement, last week's distribution having ranged from 89 to 95 r cent. The outgoing tonnage is king on much larger proportions, e present movement of 1,500 cars coal and 900 cars of coke a day r the Monongahela railway approaching in combined tonnage the ak of that company's fuel traffic.

The estimated production of coke ring the week ended Saturday, May , was 295,670 tons, contributed by e two districts in the following proortions: Connellsville, 170,820, an crease of 620 tons; Lower Connellsle, 125,050, a decrease of 3,380 tons, a net decrease of 2,760 tons as mpared with a net increase of 710 ns during the preceding week.

By interests the production was: rnace, 183,350, a gain of 1,010 tons; erchant, 112,320, a loss of 3,770 tons compared with a gain of 2,940 and loss of 2,230 tons respectively durg the week ended May 19.

There was a total gain of 98 in the mber of ovens in blast, 36 at furce and 62 at merchant plants. The ners were all at operations of the . C. Frick Coke Company as follows: Celliers, eight; Continental o. 2, 15; Davidson, five; Shoaf, eight. he merchant additions were: Oliver o. 3, 12; Low Phos, 50.

Production by the two interests and e total compared with the corresponding week in 1922 is shown here-ith:

NEW COLLECTIVE BARGAINING SYSTEM AT BETHLEHEM STEEL

A new system of collective bargaining is to be inaugurated at the Cambria plant of the Bethlehem Steel Company to replace that operating under the regime of the Midvale Steel & Ordnance Company, former owners. Under the new program there will be formed a plant council, five of whom will be selected by the employes and an equal number to be selected or chosen by the plant management. This group of employes will look after the interests of all employes of the Johnstown plant of the Bethlehem Steel Company as affecting working condition, questions of wages, hours, safety, transportation, etc. Under the program of the Bethlehem organization, a plan similar to the one to be put in force in Johnstown will function at each of the plants owned and operated by the Bethlehem Steel Company.

All affairs of interest to employes will be handled through this committee of 10. The work of the committee is sub-divided into four classes—rules and regulations, transportation, safety and wages.

Coal Research Work Will Be Continued By Carnegie Tech

Two more research fellows will be added to the staff of the Mining Department at Carnegie Institute of Technology, next year, to continue the important coal-mine investigations now being conducted in coöperation with the United States Bureau of Mines. At a meeting of the advisory board of coal mine operators held recently in Pittsburg, various problems were suggested for research, and two companies agreed to finance the employment of additional research fellows.

The Hillman Coal & Coke Company which will finance the employment of one of the investigators, has recommended that the research fellow work on this problem: "The shooting of coal to produce a larger percentage of lump." The Mine Safety Appliance Company, which will also finance a fellowship, recommended that "the adaptability of gas masks in fighting mine fires" be investigated.

The employment of two more investigators increases the staff to six, to be selected by the coöperative department of mining engineering at Carnegie Tech, and to work under the joint auspices of Carnegie Tech, the Bureau of Mines, and the advisory board of operators. In June of this year, the second year of research work on coal-mining problems will be completed.

Among the problems suggested by the operators for attack next year are: Continuation of the study of the correlation of coal beds of Western Pennsylvania through their microscopic constituents; extension of the study of acid mine waters to the actual tests of various experimental machinery parts in the mines; and mine car gear and lubrication.

Certificate System To Give Protection Foreign Coal Buyers

Representatives of coal operators in Pennsylvania and other states conferred in Washington a few days ago with officials of the Federal Bureau of Mines relative to the exportation of bituminous and anthracite. A tentative agreement was reached looking to the introduction of a certificate system by the legitimate producers which will protect their exported product.

It is the plan of the operators in the future to guarantee the coal shipped to foreign countries, giving the purchaser the quality of the fuel, from which field it is mined and other information required. It was stated, following the meeting, that the legitimate trade has been seriously injured in the foreign trade through the exportation of inferior grades of coal by exporters who were out for a profit rather than building business for the future. Under the tentative plan agreed to foreign purchasers will be protected in the grade of fuel they purchase from American producers. Another meeting with the Bureau of Mines officials will be held in the near future to perfect the plans.

Ore Shipments Boost Freight Car Loadings

Due entirely to increased loading of iron ore, revenue freight loading of railroads jumped to 974,531 cars in the week ended May 12. This compared with 961,029 cars in the previous week and 767,094 in the corresponding week of 1922. Ore loading was 59,618 cars, compared with 37,913 in the previous week and only 14,037 cars in the same week of 1922.

EFFECTIVE METHOD OF COUNTERACTING MONOXIDE POISON

SIMPLE IN OPERATION

Scientists attached to the Pittsburg station of the United States Bureau of Mines have scored another triumph in chemistry and research work leading to a possible means of saving human life in coal mines, garages, tunnels and everywhere where deadly carbon monoxide gas has been taking its costly toll. This developed last week after announcement of the discovery of a quick and effective method of determining carbon monoxide gas poisoning, heretofore not possible in most cases until a lapse of 24 to 48 hours, by the Department of the Interior at Washington, of which the Bureau of Mines is an important subdivision.

It was revealed that the compact little equipment cans for the application of the test, and the secrets of its power to combat carbon monoxide poisoning were discovered and perfected by two staff members of the Pittsburg station of the Bureau of Mines, Dr. R. R. Sayers, chief surgeon, and W. B. Yant, chemist.

About 700 letters have been sent out from the Department of the Interior, to physicians and surgeons in industrial centers, telling them of the discovery, so that those in whose practice monoxide gas poisoning is most common may apply the remedy."

The value of the discovery is in the case of a positive and infallible diagnosis of monoxide gas poisoning, and in determining the exact amount of the deadly gas inhaled into the system.

The test is simple. Where any symptom is shown to indicate possible carbon monoxide gas poisoning, a drop of blood is drawn from the tip of the patient's finger into a tiny measuring instrument and diluted with water and certain chemicals. At once this fluid if poisoning from monoxide gas is present turns color, ranging from gray to bright red. The intensity of the color marks the percentage of the gas present in the blood.

Research work on the problem has been under way for about two and a half years at the local station of the Bureau of Mines.

Owners of Coal Must Pay Taxes.

Governor Pinchot approved the bill of Representative Post, Washington county, relieving life tenants of land from the payment of taxes on the underlying veins of coal which they have no right to operate. The new law, which is the first of the series of coal bills before the Legislature to be signed, provides that such coal shall be assessed to and the taxes paid by the owners of the veins of coal.

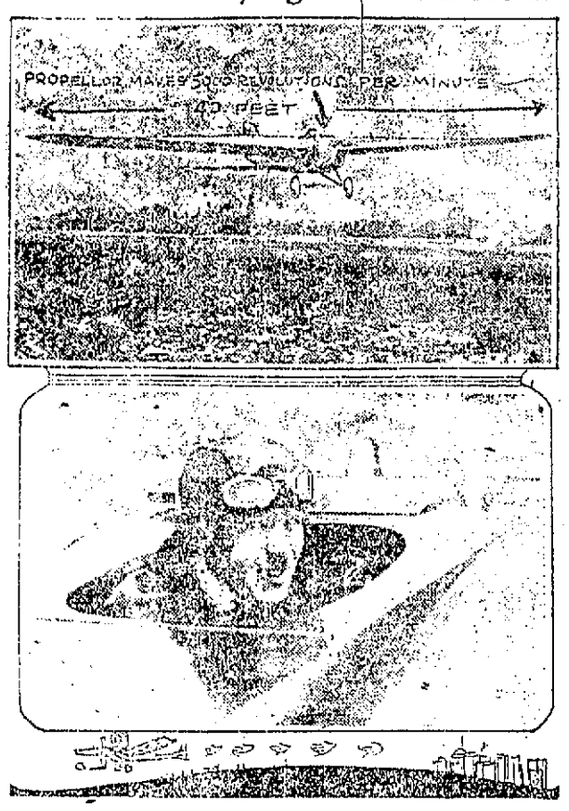
New York To Chicago By Air For $2.50: French "Flying Fliver" Does It



GEORGES BARBOT, FRENCH ACE, AND HIS "AIR FLIVVER."

NEW YORK—The busy New York business man can now run out to Chicago and back by air for the simple sum of $51

The "air flivver" has made it possible. Georges Barbot, French ace, inventor of the new small plane called the Derwottine Motor-Avette, which he is now demonstrating in this country, has been able to make 125 miles on a gallon of gas.

At this rate, the owner of a "flying flivver" could fly to San Francisco from New York for a total expenditure of less than $50.

Stomach Trouble Disappears

Dreco Does Work Where Other

Don't Delay. Call on the Dreco Expert at the Connellsville Drug Store. He Can Help.

Mr. Paul Snyder a well known Prudential Insurance Company salesman of Connellsville suffered from stomach trouble. It became so bad that he could not sleep and at times he would ache all over.

This deplorable condition ran on, until it was suggested that he take DRECO.

"DRECO is certainly a wonderful remedy," says Mr. Snyder.

"For a long time I had suffered intensely from stomach trouble, and sometimes I would ache all over. I couldn't sleep.

"Then I started taking DRECO. I have now taken one bottle and feel fine.

"All signs of stomach troubles have disappeared and I again sleep as well as anyone.

"All my thanks to DRECO. It certainly helped me a lot."

Just because you are not incapacitated from your business or pleasure, the warning of stomach trouble should not go unheeded or serious results are bound to follow. These warnings make the form of dyspepsia, indigestion, dizziness, nervousness, constipation, headache, backache, pains in the back and side, that tired, rundown feeling and various other symptoms of a deranged stomach which can be restored to its normal condition by DRECO, the great herbal compound. Under the influence of its great restorative effect, these symptoms rapidly subside. It clears up the liver, kidneys, bladder and enables these organs to perform their proper functions, eliminates uric acid from the blood, which causes rheumatism and brings back the flush of health to pale cheeks by enriching and purifying the blood.

Call today at the Connellsville Drug Store and ask to talk with the expert from the Dreco Laboratories. He will gladly tell you of the merits of this wonderful remedy... Also he will honestly tell you whether or not DRECO will benefit you.—Advertisement.

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why ointments do not give you quick and lasting relief?

Why suppositories and operations fail?

Do you know the cause of piles is internal?

If so, there is a stagnation of blood in the lower bowels?

Do you know that there is a harmless remedy, discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as Hem-Roid, now sold by Connellsville Drug Co., and druggists generally, that is guaranteed?

Hem-Roid banishes piles by removing the cause, by freeing blood circulation in the lower bowels. The simple home treatment has an almost unbelievable record for sure, safe and lasting relief to thousands of piles sick sufferers. There is no reason why it should not do the same for you.—Advertisement.

One-Piece Dresses Are in Limelight

Straightline Frocks Serve Admirably for Day or Evening Wear.

For every frock with a new silhouette one finds about five that are still clinging to the old tried and true straight lines. And these lines, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times, are so extremely simple that they charm by their very lack of ornament. They are the plainest frocks that women have ever thought of wearing, and having outlived more pretentious forms through a long period of time, which alone can test the worth of an art, they are living to lend another season. It remains to be seen when women will ever grow tired of their chaste expression or of the feeling which they represent.

You may go into any gathering—early morning, afternoon, dinner or late evening—and always you will be able to find the one-piece dress holding its own, looking always most attractive and forever feeling sure of itself. It is a design that has so much in its favor that, no matter where it is seen it is sure to be triumphant on the field of action.

Moreover, this season there are so many stunningly beautiful fabrics that lend themselves most particularly to the making of the one-piece frock. After all, it is a thing of fabric and fabric only, for it brooks no fanciness of trimming, and when the material counts for much in itself it needs nothing more elaborate than the straight and simple lines of the one-piece frock to make it a notable thing. Women will be forever thrilled at beauty of fabric, and now when it is their good fortune to find pieces of stuffs on every counter that hold a thrill all their own, these women just naturally gravitate to fitting the fabrics to the one-piece frocks and vice versa. You can see them at the counters fondling and feeling the lovely stuffs and you know that through their minds the pattern of the one-piece dress is weaving itself in and out until at last the purchase is made and the frock becomes an imminent possibility.

May Be of Any Material.

Take the one piece dress for the morning hours. It can be of anything from gingham to silk and to serge, or to any woolen material, depending upon the sort of duties that confront you. All that is the duty of each individual in planning this frock is to decide what are her proper and harmonious proportions. She must have her waistline posed at the proper angle for just the lines of her figure. She must have the sleeves shaped just right for her own arms. She must study the length of the skirt and the tying of the sash. They seem simple enough duties in connection with making good the appearance of the unpretentious frock, but somehow they are not always accomplished with the art and efficiency that one might wish. When they are well done there is nothing left to be desired from the dress that is the result, but when even one of them is badly considered and executed there is all the difference in the world.

The serge dress of this season is trimmed when it is of the one-piece variety, with rows of silk braid or with brilliant silk bindings and facings or with lines of hand done embroidery embodying many colorings.

Then there is the one-piece dress of some dark tone of heavy crepe. Very often that is left without any trimming except a binding of itself, and there is apt to be a plaited insert or a plaited panel or so to give it that extra fullness and wavy line which makes the silk so much more attractive than when it is left in its original state. This dress is lovely in dark blue or in one of the lighter shades of brown or in some tint of gray. It does for cooler days with a coat thrown over it, and for the very warm days there is nothing like it, for it refuses to muss and always keeps that perfectly straight line which is so much a part of its attraction.

Gingham for Morning Wear.

Ginghams are lovely for these morning dresses, and they should have white linen collars and cuffs. Linens themselves are beautiful in this guise. Then there are the cotton ratines that have everything in their favor, and, whether they are striped or plaided or plain, they are wonderful when made up in the full or the scant varieties of one-piece dress.

For afternoon, all there is to do, if you are a patron of the one-piece line, is to change your type of material. There is very little else to change, from one time of day to another, but the softer and more colorful and more picturesque materials have an excellent opportunity to shine in your favor when used for this sort of frock.

The printed silks are particularly lovely in this connection. Of course, as in everything else, there are good ones and bad ones, but those that are beautiful in design and beautiful in coloring are excellent finds for the one piece dress that is destined to be used for the lighter formalities of afternoon during the spring and summer. A printed silk design needs nothing more than the material itself to make it a success and that is the key to the successful interpretation of the simple little dress about which we are concerned. Most of these frocks are bound with ribbon—just enough accent of color being embodied in that finish to make it a fitting edge for the material which it adorns. If there is a good deal of black in the printing of the design then it is well to use a narrow black ribbon for the binding. But if the predominant and becoming note of the colored pattern happens to be some other color then it is altogether wise to repeat that tone in the ribbon that is used for the finish.

Most of these frocks have tiny little sleeves that do the arm quite scant justice and some of them even go so far as to have portions over the upper arm that almost look like no sleeves at all. Of course they have some shaping and they do stretch over the shoulders in semblance of sleeves but to the untutored eye they might very well give the impression of no sleeves at all. However, they manage to create the desired effect that is called style and that is all they need do after all.

The idea seems to be to make the pattern as stunning as possible and as aptly suited to the personality in question as it can be. When one's figure is tall and thin then a big sprawling pattern is much to be desired but when it is short and plump then it is far wiser to have a pattern that is small and often repeated.

Skirts Growing Shorter.

It is good for the one-piece dress that the lengths of skirts are growing shorter, for they really should have skirts that are not too long. After they pass a certain point of length they lose that chic and smartness which should be a part of them, and once that is gone there is no hope for the dress and its ultimate success. The news that nine inches from the ground shall be a happy figure for dresses this summer comes as a life saver to the one piece line which has kept that length all along no matter how wobbly it might have felt at times at being pushed from the standard adopted by that line alone.

For sports we still have the one piece dress for nothing as yet has proved itself more satisfactory. There is the dress of French flannel in all the lovely plain colors and in the striped and plaided patterns. In colder climes that has everything in its favor for while it keeps its shape and form for all sorts of outdoor wear it is still capable of being washed over and over indefinitely, and even the colors are fast. They are now printing all the colorful patterns on white and cream flannel backgrounds the colors being guaranteed fast so that they can be washed along with the rest of them. With these dresses the brightly colored suede belts are particularly

Coker Independents Will Play Consumers Saturday

Another First-Class Pittsburg Club Is Booked for Week-End Game.

CAPSTAN GLASS WINS

The Consumers Club of Pittsburg will be the attraction here tomorrow afternoon when the Connellsville Independents will open their home playing season. The locals will endeavor to keep up their splendid pace and the fans generally will be out in large numbers to see the game. The crowd out to watch Connellsville defeat the Pittsburgh Phillies on Decoration Day will be on hand to see the Coker outfit in action. The Consumers will be considered one of the best semi-pro teams in Pittsburg and is certain to please. The Colerain management has been working on a deal to bring Wagner to this city but will not succeed. It is doubtful if Honus will ever don a baseball uniform again. His knees are in bad shape and Honus will probably not play ball any more. Wagner was a great player in his day and a great favorite with baseball fans in this section.

Jack Menoff, formerly of Dawson, is now a member of the Colerain baseball staff.

Coach Bedwell will be on the mound for the Colerain club and Ivan Lamb will probably work behind the bat. Bill Goulder of Bethlehem Steel will be on the mound for Consumers when Coach Bedwell does not pitch. Bedwell was pitching for Homestead when Connellsville defeated the Steelers 2 to 1 in 10 innings. Bedwell was a great pitcher but will be a big stick when it comes to opposition offerings.

The remainder of Colerain lineup will be announced.

Of Interest to Fans

The Pittsburg National League Baseball Club is putting a pretty fast team on the field this season. Secretary Ed Barrow was on the job and although he could not land all the stars, he succeeded in getting some right pretty hard players. The Pirates will be one of the teams to beat. New York gained another win in Pittsburg by winning from Philadelphia 4 to 3.

The Cubs are now in third place, defeating the Reds at Cedar Grove yesterday by a score of 10 to 7. A Chicago hit three times and the Cubs made two errors and the Reds made three errors. Cook was pitched ball.

Brooklyn still continues to win defeating Boston yesterday. The Dodgers are third in the league.

The cool weather of last week is keeping baseball fans away from the games. Motion pictures are played on the South Side every evening.

PRACTICAL HINTS ON FIELDING FLY BALLS

Player Should Not Try to Time Flight so as Barely to Make the Catch.

(By CARL LUNDGREN, Baseball Coach University of Illinois.)

In fielding fly balls a player should get under the ball as fast as possible and should not try to time the flight so as barely to get to the ball. The reason for this is that if the man in question misjudges the direction and speed of the ball if he gets there in plenty of time he will have an opportunity to shift so as still to get under it.

In catching fly balls the fielders should learn to catch them with palms up or with the palms up and the thumbs to in. The first is usually the safest method but it is well to practice both.

The following points should be considered in fielding fly balls. In running, the spot where the ball will fall can with the aid of the sun's path across this is the best method of carrying the arm when running. That is the hand should not be carried in the air in a position of readiness for catching the ball while the fielder is running. When the ball hits the glove the receiver's hand should be relaxed and should give all or with the impact of the ball against the glove.

An infielder should turn and run to a ball as he can so as to have his face toward the ball. He should not attempt to keep his eye on the ball while he is running as this will slow him up. It is a difficult matter to catch the fly balls in this manner but a good outfielder should be able to do it.

Australians Bid for American Swim Coach

An Australian newspaper offers $5,000 towards a fund to secure an American swimming coach to spend six months in that country to instruct swimmers there in the methods which have placed the United States at the top in aquatics.

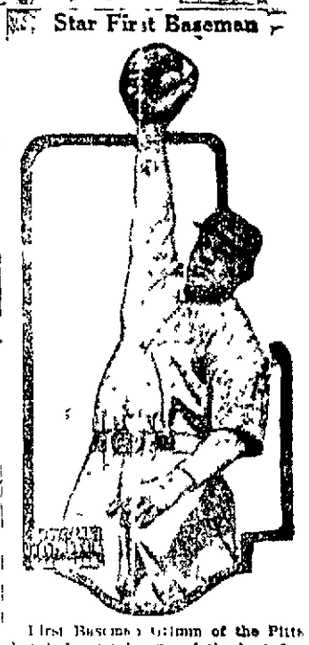
Novel Way of Raising Funds for New Stadium

Centre college has adopted a novel way of raising funds for their new stadium at Danville, Ky. The structure will be concrete and admirers of the fighting Colonels are asked to send their checks for as many barrels of cement as they care to purchase at $3.15 a barrel.

Pitching Mainstays Still Going Nicely

Those pitching mainstays, Walter Johnson of Washington and G. C. Alexander of the Chicago Nationals show no sign of letting up in the effectiveness of their stuff, they are if anything a little better stuff than has been the case in some recent years. Though both are well entitled to be considered veterans, Johnson's term of service exceeds that of the Cub boxman by several years.

Star First Baseman



First Baseman Grimm of the Pittsburgh Pirates is one of the best first sackers in the major leagues. He was especially good last season and has started off this year like a whirlwind. His batting also is hard and timely.

Winning crews in this year's Canadian Henley regatta to be rowed in July, will represent the Dominion of Canada in the Olympic regatta in Paris next year.

Blouse and Cape Liked by Women

Garments Among Features in the Tailored and Sports Wear.

Tailored suits are emphasized. These are almost always with the blouse in harmony but separate. Many charming models are in the so-called sports-wear style. A new idea, notes a fashion correspondent in the New York Tribune, is to have a separate collar or scarf to match the suit in fabric and color.

Deauville, a lovely model in white, has a blouse made from a printed silk shawl. A suit of white wool crepella has a finely pleated skirt and a blouse-coat of yellow bure. Accompanying this is a blouse of yellow tussah printed in lovely tones of yellow with black and white relief. "Discretion" is a three-piece suit the dress of which is of white serge trimmed with navy blue and red. The coat is bright red frisotte, a new, nappy-surfaced, silky-looking material.

Red and white are featured in a costume of three-piece effect, with wrap in cape style, the latter lined with a red printed crepe de chine and the simple, straight dress of white with colorful printed trimmings.

"Golf" is a very sporty looking model in homespun Shetland wool, with a plain skirt and sweater blouse. Another interesting effect is achieved in a knitted suit in wool chinee, showing a blend of navy yellow and custer yarns.

Important for out-of-door wear are dresses and coats of rubberized crepe de chine in lovely shades, such as sage green, primrose yellow and rose violine. Sometimes these dresses are reversible and in two shades.

There also are several models made of suede and dressed leathers, notably in bright red and deep rust color. Leather and rubberized crepe de chine are combined in some of the novelty sports coats.

Novelty Woolens All Rage for Top Coats

Whether you plan to travel or to remain at home, a good-looking top coat is a very worth-while possession. The new spring models are as practical as they are attractive.

In the first place novelty woolens are all the rage. Never have there been so many delightful colors and patterns to choose from. Time was when a coat was a garment primarily for warmth. Usually, it was of some dark material, well cut but always on conventional lines.

Now a coat must be jaunty or it isn't in the running, and the owner feels rather out of it if an admiring friend can say, "Your coat is stunning. It's such-and-such material, isn't it?"

For if you're wearing a really up-to-the-minute model it'll be, "What a charming wrap! But do tell me what the material is. I could never guess. Haven't seen anything like it."

Then you can know that your top coat is really all that it should be and you can murmur, "My dear, it's one of the novelty woolens," with a detached air that doesn't give away at all how pleased you are that your modiste never misses the newest innovations.

Old Styles Made Smart.

The revival of the fashions and fabrics of the 'eighties and 'nineties is the latest trend of dress. The curious thing is that while these periods suggest dowdiness and dullness, the new spring gowns inspired by them are charming.

Stylish Sleeves.

Sleeves can't be too long these days when they have gone as far as they have with the material, they are quite apt to add frills of lace or chiffon. The other extreme, of course, is to eliminate the sleeve entirely.

WE WANT LOTS OF MUSIC

We kiddies demand a player-piano So's we can play

"MUSIC Makes Us Good," "Children Need Music," "We Want Lots of Music"—read the posters. Even the "kiddies" are striking for music. Bless their little hearts!

Unconsciously—mother—are you cheating your bright-eyed youngster of a good influence which will help round out his life?

Do you realize what a vital part music holds in his life? How necessary it is that he should have music?

A great authority on children's welfare says:

"Through music, the child enters a world of beauty—expresses his innermost self—tastes the joy of creating—widens his sympathies—develops his mind—soothes and refines his spirit."

Music brings health and happiness. Think of your child's happiness—and health.

The future of a child is tremendously affected by the PRESENT, and by the wholesome influences that surround it now.

The growing mind of the child continually reaches out for new experiences, companionship and pleasures, and if such are not to be found at home, they are sought abroad.

There is no disappointment that comes away from their children—through the to parents greater than that of growing child finding more pleasure without the home than within.

Provide NOW, sufficient pleasures and attraction within the home, to make thought of seeking most of pleasure outside the home, both unlikely and undesirable to the child.

Music is a universal pleasure, and the piano is the universal, complete musical instrument; and a piano in the home where there are young children will mean a more contented and more complete home.

The time to begin to train young children to love music is as soon as they can hear, as it will then become natural for them to look upon music as one of home's greatest attractions.

Music in the home means more than pleasure. It means an ever-ready, ever-satisfying companion for all in the home; a help to social advancement, and a means of bringing the choicest companions and friends within your own home circle.

For the folks that cannot play by hand, the efficient modern Player Piano will bring all the music of the world to you, and in a thoroughly natural way.

And now, during our tremendous Midsummer Co-Operative Distribution, will be found your ideal opportunity to secure an instrument that we have sold for two decades on MERIT, at prices much below the regular standard price maintained elsewhere now, and to be resumed immediately by us after this distribution is completed.

The spirit of this distribution is to yield the largest savings possible in Money to you and 1999 other purchasers, who, by co-operating and buying within a short and definite period of time, make possible very great concessions and discounts to us, and from us to you.

THE COLD LOGIC. The public must believe the dealer and manufacturers are acting in good faith, and giving the members their full share of the fruits of co-operation. There must be mutual confidence and good reason for it. The object is to make it desirable and profitable to the public to buy Pianos at a time when ordinarily they would not, and when factories and stores are usually dull.

Ten years of multiplying success proves the true merit of the W. F. Frederick Piano Club. Our first club had 200 members. Our fourth had five times as many. Our last was composed of 2000 members. Success in such measure does not come without deserving. This club will have 2,000 members.

"Senora, I pray you do not misunderstand my confession. Beyond my confession to you I have only a duty to tell you of the man who owns your life. But I am a priest and I can read the soul. The ways of God are inscrutable. I am only a humble instrument. You are a noble woman and Senor Stewart is a man of desert iron forged anew in the crucible of love. Queen ashes? Senor Stewart swore he would kill me if I betrayed him. But he will not lift his hand against me. For the man bears you a very great and pure love and it has changed him. To love you above the spirit of the flesh, to know you are his wife, his, never to be gone but for his sacrifice, to watch you with a secret glory of joy and pride, to stand while he might between you and evil, to find his happiness in service, to wait with never a dream of telling you for the hour to come when to have you free he must go out and get himself shot! Senora, that is beautiful. It is sublime. It is terrible. It has brought me to you with my confession. So I beseech you in my humble office as priest as a lover of mankind, before you send Stewart to his death to be sure there is here no mysterious dispensation of God. I pray you Senora, before you let Stewart give you freedom at such a cost be sure you do not want his love lost you cast away something sweet and ennobling which you yourself have created.

CHAPTER XXI

News of Stewart

Pilar left the wild creature Madeline Hammond ran to her room. She felt as if a stroke of lightning had shattered the shadowy substance of the dream. She had made of real life. The wonder of Danny Mains story, the strange regret with which she had realized her injustice to Stewart, the astounding secret as revealed by Padre Marcos—these were forgotten in the sudden convulsiveness of her own love. She thrilled to the thought that knocked at the gates of her mind. With quivering lips she whispered it. Then she spoke aloud.

"I will say it—hear it. I—I love him!"

In a nature where strength of feeling had long been inhibited as a matter of training such a transforming surprise as sudden consciousness of passionate love required time for its awakening, time for its way.

By and by that last exhilarating moment came and Madeline Hammond faced not only the love in her heart but the thought of the man she loved.

Suddenly as she raged something in her—this dauntless new personality—took arms against indictment of Gene Stewart. Her mind whirled about him and his life. She saw him drunk, brutal, and she saw him abandoned, lost. Then out of the picture she had of him thus slowly grew one of a different man—weak, sick, changed by shock, growing strong strangely, spiritually altered, silent, lonely like an eagle, secretive, tireless, faithful, soft as a woman, hard as iron to endure, and at the last noble.

"Oh, it is all terrible!" she cried. "I am his wife. His wife! That meeting with him—the marriage—then his fall, his love, his rise, his silence, his pride! And I can never be anything to him. Could I be anything to him, I, Madeline Hammond? But I am his wife, and I love him! His wife! I am the wife of a stranger. That might be undone. Can my love be undone? Oh, no! I want anything undone? He is gone. Oh! Could he have meant—I will not think of that. He will come back. No, he never will come back. Oh, what shall I do?"

* * * * * * *

On the morning of the next day when Madeline went out upon the porch Stilwell haggard and worn with sleeplessness incoherent word handed her a message from El Cajon. She read:

"El Capitan Stewart captured by rebel soldiers in fight at Agua Prieta yesterday. He was a sharpshooter in the federal ranks. Sentenced to death El Grande at sunset."

"I Will Say It—Hear It—I—I Love Him!"

CHAPTER XXII

The Ride

"Stilwell!"

The old cattleman stood up before her staring at her white face and her eyes of flame.

Stilwell, I am Stewart's wife!"

"My Gawd, Miss Majesty," he burst out. "I knowed somethin' terrible was wrong. An' sure it's a pity—"

"Do you mind, I'll let him be shot when I was him now, when I no longer feel when I have his promise with pain and awfulness I will save him. This is Wednesday morning. I have thirty-six hours to save his life. Stilwell, send for Link and the car."

She went into her office. Her head worked with extraordinary rapidity and clearness. Hastily but in the lightning flash of her mind she mentally threw careful wires of dreams to Washington, to New York, to San Antonio. The wires were to pull out resources not only high in public and private life in men who would form plots but in men who would be loyal to friendship. Never before had she felt the need and the power with what it meant now. Never in all her life had money seemed the power that it was then. It still did. Poor, poor Abijah in his free thought and skepticism. So dear, brave Judith on her bed of sickness. She had power. She had wealth. She would use it now. All the unselfish means these stood for. She would pull and struggle and fight the surface of pallid mind and materialism of the open, free, pulsating value of mine earth, dear, young and generous in feeling. Yes, God, she would use Stewart.

When she went out to the car was the wire Madeline in hand at one bright glance at her eyes and with Stilwell's help in gait mounted beautiful to report to Madeline's spirit.

Link drove Stilwell to El Cajon in time for him to send the El Paso train to the sale. Wait there for him return and if any message comes from him telephone it at once to me.

Then she gave Stilwell the bill drafts to send from El Cajon and drafts to cash in El Paso. She instructed him to go before the rebel commandant at Juarez and explain the situation to him. Then expect communications from Washington, Stewart's resigning and offering Stewart's exchange as a prisoner of war to offer to buy his release from the rebel authorities.

There was a crack, a muffled sound, bursting into a roar and the big car jerked forward to bound over the ridge of the slope to leap down the long incline to shoot out on the level valley floor and disappear in a moving cloud.

Madeline endured patiently, oddly for long, interminable hours while doing to cope with her limitless will.

No message came. At sunset she went out on a suffering a torment of accumulating suspense. Night fell. She prayed the sun rose to rise not to begin a short, wet hour journey toward west might be a fatal setting for Stewart. But the dawn did lighten and Madeline thought irrepressibly Dan might have died and this was Thursday.

Sharp ringing of the telephone bell startled her into action. She ran to answer the call.

Hello—hello—Miss Majesty—came the hurried reply. "This is Link talkin'. Messages for you. I'm on the operator said. I'm to ride out with them. I'll come in him rein."

That was all. Madeline heard the bang of the door as Stevens threw it down. Favorable. Then Stilwell had been successful. Her heart leaped. Suddenly she became weak and her hands filled of their accustomed deftness. It took her what seemed a thousand years to cross. In effect it took nothing to her except that it helped her to pass dragging minutes.

Finally a low hum, mounting swiftly to a roar and ending with a short report announced the arrival of the car. If her feet had kept pace with her heart she would have raced out to meet Link!

He gave her a packet of telegrams. Madeline tore them open with shaking fingers. Both to read with swift lines. Some were from Washington assuring her of every possible service, some were from New York, others written in Spanish came from El Paso and these she could not wholly translate in a brief glance. Would she never find Stilwell's message? It was there! It was here! It read:

Don't Stewart's client. A soldier named Pinto is train as prisoner of war. He must get off all. He's safe. If we can get Pinto to his citizens. Not sure. I've reached them by wire. Afraid to trust it. You go with Pinto. Again Pinto. Take the message sent you in Spanish. This will protect you and secure Stewart's freedom. Take Nels with you. Stop for nothing. Tell Link all—trust him—let him drive that car.

STILWELL.

Link, do you know the roads the trail—the desert between here and Agua Prieta?" she asked. "Can an automobile be driven from here into northern Mexico?"

"Sure. But it'd take time."

Can an Automobile Be Driven From Here Into Northern Mexico?"

"We're got to it in little time," she said in quick urgency. "Other will Senor and I probably will be there."

Link Stevens appraised her doubt to get her self. "It is all his pal. I'm just to stay on and go."

"Yes, only one other Miss Majesty. If anything should happen to me—that's an awful will—you'll carry out my orders. If I'm not back in twenty-four hours, you'll start the car and turn your lights. Link, no one be to go after the ride."

"Can Stewart's life," she answered Link and she looked at him not conscious of motive to persuade or plead, but just to let him know the greatness of her dependence upon him.

He started violently. A cold action of Stewart the man—a action of Miss Link's trust was of the sure will need.

Then Link's words flowed in a torrent. "I'm Stewart's wife. I love him. I'm to go back to him. I must save him. I think I have faith in you. I'm sure you'll do your best for Stewart's sake for my sake. I'll risk the ride—Link—bravely. I'll not care where or how you drive. I'd far rather plunge in an canyon—go to my death on the ride than not try to save Stewart."

How beautiful the response of this rude cowboy to realize his absolute unconscious best of self to see the long-ago shoe burn out of his face the old cool devil may care spirit return. Miss Majesty, and to feel something, more than what or danger or sacrifice. All could not have existed between him and Miss Majesty.

Miss Majesty, rider rides figgers impossible but I'll do it!" he replied. His voice brightened her. "I'll need all I can have a hour to get over the car in to pack on what I'll want."

She could not stand him and her replies were merely a request that he tell Nels and her cowboys off duty to come up to the house. When Link had gone Madeline gave a moment's thought to preparations for the ride.

A number of whom were waiting. She explained the situation and left them in charge of her home. With Pinto and Nels accompany her departure.

Miss Majesty, I'm powerful proud to go. If you're going down, I'm to be Cross's escort me.

Madeline heard the buzz of the car. Link appeared driving up the slope. He made a short sliding turn and stopped. Link had tied two long heavy planks upon the running on each side and in every available space he had stuffed extra tires. A canvas, occupied one back seat and in there sat was full of tools and ropes. There was just room in this rear part of the car for Nels to squeeze in. Link put Madeline in front beside him, then bent over the wheel. Madeline waved her hand at the silent cowboys on the porch. Not an audible goodby was spoken.

The car glided out of the yard, leaped from level to slope and started swiftly down the road out into the open valley. Each stronger rush of dry wind in Madeline's face marked the increase of speed. The buzz the tires of heavy body in flight increased to a continuous droning hum. The wind became an insupportable body moving toward her crushing her breath and making the task of facing most difficult. To Madeline the car seemed to fly with the speed of mind.

Out in the lonely stretches barred the way pulled to the way and the Nels pressed in the grim hunt with which he was wont to view tragic things. Again and again Link used the planks to cross washes in sand. Presently he came to a ditch where water had worn deep into the road. Without hesitation he placed them, measuring distance carefully, and then started across. The danger was in ditching the machine. One of the planks split, sagged a little but Link made the crossing without slip.

Sub Committee of Banker's Association Report Sufficient Money to Complete Plans

The sub committee on good roads of the Illinois Bankers association after careful investigation has reported to that body that there are approximately sufficient funds available to complete the 4,000 miles of highway set to be built of the 7,000 miles in the Illinois plan within five years without issuing any more bonds or increasing the motor fees.

It is believed that the increase in motor vehicles may increase the highway revenue to such an extent that the state will be able to finance the improvement of the connecting roads on the pay as you go plan and avoid further debt and further interest payments.

LONG TREE-LINED HIGHWAYS

Roads Dedicated to Soldiers Who Fell in World War to Be Begun in New York State

A "Road of Remembrance" dedicated to soldiers who fell in the World war is to be begun in New York on a large scale, and it will be carried on under competent hands. That will insure the health and longevity of the trees. The planting, when completed according to present plans, will be more than 100 miles in length.

Money for Better Roads

More than $40,000,000 was raised by the various counties of the state of Pennsylvania during the last four years as their contribution toward making the highway system of Pennsylvania the finest in the country.

PERMANENT BODY FARMERS, BUSINESS MEN WILL RESULT

I've put the uppermost effort War in all its phases is destructive—from a plane to end it destroys property and takes productive lives It yet nothing in return unless it be the sacrifice many of those who have died We are gathered here tonight to talk nothing constructive

While you business men pride you selves in being a business class I want you to remember that the farmer is perhaps the largest business unit on the world The farmer produces 70 per cent of every dollar of raw material All the other business combined produce the other 30 per cent of raw material

We do not have the destructive element at any time in any place in the farmers program I want you to get into your minds that the agricultural business is the greatest undeveloped resource in the world today Very few communities have made any effort to develop agricultural possibilities The communities that have produced more and better materials from the land and have found it more profitable

As to the undeveloped resources of the State of Pennsylvania of Fayette county you don't know what you have You have done something, you say, when your Chamber of Commerce brings here a plant that employs 200 to 400 men You have but untouched resources five 10 yes 20 times as great as large as the largest factory you could get here Communities which have tried to develop agricultural possibilities will bear out this assertion

Grove City once extended no farther than its corporate borders It is now a community 30 miles in diameter that has been brought about through the cooperation of the bankers the business men and the farmers working them, the finest development of the kind in the community

Development of the farming possibilities in a community will bring in more money than anything else you can do The farmer produces from the ground up He brings to the community dollars where the factory brings cents All you get from the factory is the wages paid as a rule

In Grove City bank deposits have increased in six years from $700 000 to $1 700 000 I don't know where else we could have expended the same effort and brought the same returns

"At Grove City there once was a feeling on the part of the farmer and of the city men that each was trying to do the other Cooperation has removed that When we get to working together each found the other human, with many things in common We found the farmer a good worker for the community and the man in town Our Commercial Club—that is what we call our chamber of commerce—has 60 farmers on its membership It is no more the destructive tendency We are working together for the common good"

Following up the proposition of the first speaker during the war to establish a demonstration creamery at Grove City the community would raise $5000 for the building and equipment the government would match dollar for dollar Mr Pithian said the city was canvassed at the start in convincing the farmers and business men of the worth of the plan One man had the proper vision, however and through his efforts $5000, the amount required was raised and the creamery was built

Three times since 1918 when the creamery was opened it said it has increased its business Today the investment is $100 000 The output is now running out at the rate of $300 000 a month for milk in layers he said It has paid the farmers $1 800 000 for milk brought in

Briefly after telling the creamery, Mr Pithian said it was thought it might be well to have pure bred cattle Fifty farmers invested the cash to a man the others gave City National Bank notes to effect the buying and breeding of pure bred stock The bank he said got its money back with profit They invested their money, took the farm as collateral and if the plan had not succeeded the bank would have had the farms

To be continued this Saturday in the Courier carrier boy edition

Calf clubs were organized among the boys and girls in and around and many were given one of them in the form of a calf Not a dollar has been offered by the bank On the other hand deposits have increased to between $1,100 000 and $1 200 000

The first car of cattle was received in 1919 Today to said there is a very general holding of pure bred stock on what he termed almost a majority of the farms In 1922 the farmers bought pure bred bulls and have to at dispose of $60 000 worth This will rapidly increase his declared Based on estimates of the Department of Agriculture it will not be long until Grove City community will be selling a million dollars worth of stock a year

Grove City community has more accredited pure bred herd of cattle than any other section of the United States for the same acreage Another credited herd he explained must pass the yield state tests for tuberculosis and other communicable diseases Through the cooperation of the State all herds in the community have been tested for disease while at the same time protection against infection from the outside has been secured by limiting in a joining communities to adjacent counties Forty thousand cattle recently were tested by a government staff Two per cent or 500 were found to be infected They ago destroyed the state and federal government bearing the loss to the farm up to 50 per cent of appraised value

Calling attention to the recognized danger of communication of tuberculosis in cattle to human beings Mr Pithian declared that it will not be long before Connellsville City Council will enact an ordinance requiring that all milk used in the city be from cattle that have been tested for disease

Not a quart of milk is sold in Grove City that is not from an accredited herd Within six months he said not a quart will be coming to the creamery that is not from a tuberculin-tested herd

Grove City community farmers raise three kinds of cattle—Jerseys Guernseys and Holstein An effort to settle one kind failed he said because each farmer had his individual idea on the kind he want

Emphasizing the interdependence of the city man on the farmer and the farmer on the city man Mr Pithian declared that the man attending this first meeting in the Connellsville region will look back with satisfaction and pride on what took place the 31st day of May, 1923

The dinner was arranged by a joint committee of farmers and business men Representing the farmers were J F Arnold E E Snyder M C Griffin Espy Lynn County Farm Agent C I Bumbarger and C F Vowrer manager of the Farmers Cooperative Dairy Association The business men's committee was made up of John J Gans chairman A B Norton Jr E T Norton and J L Small

The meal was served by the Ladies Bible Class of the Presbyterian Sunday School A vote of thanks was extended the class for the excellence of the dinner

During the program the Kiwanis Glee Club led by John Davis sang a number of selections to the delight of the audience Dr Bennett W Hutchinson lavished a blessing on the occasion The program opened with the singing of a stanza of 'America' and closed with a stanza of The Star Spangled Banner all standing and facing a large silk flag back of the speakers table
